

ESSENTIAL BOOKS

The following books are essential reference texts for you to purchase

Please Note: You are advised to buy a copy of the set text for your module before you enrol.

MODULES 2 & 3:

Distance Learning students:

If you started the Foundation Course before 1st December 2018:

Raphael's Ephemeris of the Planets' Positions for 2016 (Foulsham & Co. Ltd.)

If you started the Foundation Course after 1st December 2018:

Raphael's Ephemeris of the Planets' Positions for 2019 (Foulsham & Co. Ltd.)

London Classes and Online Classes students: You will need to buy the relevant Raphael's Ephemeris listed above in order to follow the examples given in the written course material which accompanies Modules 2 and 3. However, for your work in the classes you should first check with your tutor as to which year's ephemeris you will need to buy.

MODULE 4:

Distance Learning and London Classes Students:

An Ephemeris for the 20th century and one for either the 21st century or just 2000-2050. These can be for either noon or midnight. There are several on offer from different publishers, and all will contain the same basic information (daily planetary positions and lunation cycle). For example:

Neil F. Michelsen: The American Ephemeris for the 20th Century (Noon or Midnight)

Neil F. Michelsen: The American Ephemeris for the 21st Century (Noon or Midnight)

There are also online ephemerides which you can use for Module 4 and your Diploma studies – for instance on the Astrodienst website: http://www.astro.com/swisseph/swepha_e.htm

MODULE 7a – Midpoints:

Distance Learning Students: Reinhold Ebertin: The Combination of Stellar Influences [COSI] (American Federation of Astrologers, 1988)

London Classes Students: The above publication (COSI) is the standard text on midpoint combinations and will be very useful for you to have as a reference book – it is also a necessary text if you wish to follow the examples given in the written course material for Module 7a. It is not however essential for the class.

MODULE 8b – Mundane Astrology – the Individual & the Collective:

Distance Learning Students: Michael Baigent, Nicholas Campion & Charles Harvey: Mundane Astrology (Thorsons, 2nd edition revised 1992)

London Classes Students: The above publication is the classic text on mundane astrology and will be very useful for you to have as a reference book – it is also the set text used in the written course material for Module 8b. It is not however essential for the class.

ORDERING YOUR BOOKS:

Specialist Astrological Bookshops:

The following three outlets specialise in astrological books. They have an online book ordering service and will ship all over the world.

N.B. Many titles, including Raphael's Ephemeris, are available from general stockists such as Amazon, Waterstones or The Book Depository (see below for details):

The Astrology Center of America

As well as being a general astrology book store, the ACA also undertakes reprinting and is a very useful source of rare and out-of-print astrology books.

Other Outlets with an Online Book Ordering Service:

Both Waterstones and Amazon can be useful sources for astrological books, including Raphael's Ephemeris.

Waterstones www.waterstones.com

Amazon www.amazon.co.uk or www.amazon.com

The Book Depository www.bookdepository.co.uk

The Book Depository is a general online bookseller, but it does offer a very wide range of astrology books (including classic textbooks and ephemerides), often at discounted prices. Free delivery to most countries.

Bibliofind www.bibliofind.com

Astrology titles do unfortunately go out of print on occasions, particularly older ones. You should be able to find most, if not all, the books in the reading lists via one or more of the outlets listed above, but if you are searching for a rare title you may find this service useful. Bibliofind and Amazon have combined forces here to provide an enormous selection of rare, used and out-of-print books.
